

Brave but Bonkers!

Member firm Caesar and Howie is known as a steady and reliable outfit. But some of the partners and staff have a side to them which could only be described as a wee bit crazy. Who in their right mind would want to jump of the Forth Rail Bridge? Well Alison MacPhee , Lizzie Douglas, and Michelle Dixon of Caesar and Howie would - that's who. They call it abseiling of course but it still involves jumping off a very high structure on a cold windy morning when most sensible people would be at home reading the papers. But these three don't do sensible – and they all completed the task with some style. They actually even reported back that they had enjoyed themselves – although the writer understands this message was sent after some sustenance had been taken in a nearby hostelry. Well deserved mind you! Not content with proving what they were made of, our trio also managed to raise £2,051 for Age Scotland. Well done ladies! You have put all of us paper readers to shame!
