

The Silver Shindig – dancing the night away for a good cause!

Some folk just love to party! And there were plenty of those at the Silver Shindig in May. This dinner dance, sponsored by Solicitors for Older People Scotland (SOPS) was held in The Hub in Edinburgh, which proved to be a most popular venue. A good turn out of guests enjoyed top quality food with lively chat at every table. Spirits were high in the company though, and some rowdy Scottish dancing followed to the music of Callanish. Many of those attending were introduced for the first time to the activities of SOPS working in partnership with Age Scotland – great for getting the message out. Best of the lot, the event raised a super total of just over £16,000, for the charity – all to be used to improve the lives of our older people. What's not to like about having a great night out and doing some good as well?
